Helpful Neighbors

New York Central is a "railroad man's railroad."

In spite of this, many of those who live along the line often think of the New York Central as a far-off institution, managed by men unknown, unseen and remote.

But the men who make the New York Central what it is are to be found along its lines, among its local agents, its foremen, its section bosses and its train crews. They are the representatives of the company, holding responsible positions because of their proved ability, intelligence and trustworthiness.

Those who live along the New York Central Lines find their New York Central neighbors helpful friends.

Farmers' Week At State College

One of the features of the twentieth annual Farmers' Week at the New York State College of Agriculture at Cornell University, Ithaca, N. Y., February 7 to 12, is "Dairy Day"—Thursday, February 10.

On that day, at 10 a. m., Dean V. A. Moore, head of the New York State College of Veterinary Medicine, will discuss the importance of the physical examination in stamping out bovine tuberculosis. Following Dean Moore, Commissioner Bernie E. Pyke, head of the state department of farms and markets, will tell of the progress made in the state against tuberculosis of cattle.

Mr. O. Ten Eyck, formerly president of the state federation of farm bureaus and now chairman of the newly formed dairymen's committee of twelve, will talk on cooperation among dairymen.

In the afternoon, Dean Herbert E. Cook, former head of the state school of agriculture at Canton, and now with the American Agriculturist, will discuss some problems which will be of interest to dairymen during the coming year. Charles H. Tuck, of the Dairymen's League, will talk on promotion of the dairy industry in New York.

Dairy Congress Head.

Following these men, H. E. Van Norman, president of the American dry milk institute, and president of the 1923 World's Dairy Congress, will talk on marketing skim milk solids. In the evening a banquet will be served by the Cornell dairy students in the new dairy building on the campus.

Some of the other high points in the program are a series of lectures each day at 11 a. m., by Dr. G. F. Warren, of the department of agricultural economics and farm management, on farm prices, the agricultural depression and other economic topics.

A conference on Tuesday and Wednesday on the rural church and another on Thursday and Friday for Grange lectures have been arranged by the department of rural social organization.

On Wednesday, Professor H. H. Wing, head of the animal husbandry department, who was in Chile, South America, recently, judging dairy cattle at a Chilean national exposition, will tell some of his observations of the dairy industry there.

BOLEROS, TIERS, AND FRINGES CONTRAST WITH FITTED AND FLARED EFFECTS.

Blue chiffon ranks next to white in frocks worn at festive occasions—Circular skirts lend themselves to the swing of the dance.

Paris.—This year's reversion dinner at Citro's was characterized by the comparatively few Americans and English people present. The greatest number of the smart assemblage were noted to be South Americans and Continentals.

The restaurant was agglitter with the sparkling bead embroideries and fringes on the women's gowns, even more noticeable because of the predominance of white. Probably four out of five women wore it. In general, the gowns were extremely simple in silhouette, boleros were frequent, and many novel cut details appeared. The boleros were rarely ever cut alike; each one presented a different line.

Both crystal and strass were used in the beading which was noted to be disposed in bandings or light all-over patterns, and usually combined with fringe, either in silk or bead.

Tight Bodices Observed. Although the silhouette was mentioned as being very simple, a number of the gowns were observed to have rather tight fitted bodices attached to circular skirts.

Only one bright color deserves mention, and that was a blue that may be best described as exactly matching the color of the blue pencil on the eyes of their wearers. Several smart women wearing simple chiffon dresses of this color.

There seemed to be more coats than capes worn as wraps. A number of them were of white ermine and several others of broad gold or silver lame. These latter were heavily trimmed with fur.

PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH FAMILY SUPPER THURSDAY

The Woman's Missionary Society of the Rondout Presbyterian Church will inaugurate the annual series of church family suppers with a covered dish supper in the chapel on Thursday evening. The girls of the Westminster Guild will sing the gay and inspiring songs they learned at the Northfield Conference and will also present a play, "The Hidden Talent," with a cast of eighteen characters, many in picturesque foreign costumes. All members of the congregation and their friends are invited to be present.

Chicken Dinner and Dance. Invitations have been sent to the members of St. Peter's Sick and Aid Society and their wives, to attend a chicken dinner and old fashioned dance at the school hall on Wednesday evening of this week. Those members who expect to come but who have not as yet notified the president of their intention, are urged to do so as soon as possible, in order that proper provision may be made.

Card Party Tonight. Tupper Camp, No. 1, Sons of Union Veterans of the Civil War, and Ladies' Auxiliary, No. 23, will hold their card party this evening at Odd Fellows' Hall, Broadway and Broome street. Prizes will be awarded and refreshments served. Play will begin at 8:30 sharp. The public is cordially invited.

Is Your Cough Three Days Old?

A cough or cold that hangs on after the third day is a threat. Do something! Don't wait until the cold has run its course—from your head to your throat—from throat to chest or bronchial tubes. Break up your cold before it settles in this "danger zone"; for inflammation spreads, and your bronchial tubes lead directly into your lungs.

Quickly and unfailingly Ayer's Cherry Pectoral goes straight to the seat of trouble. With the very first swallow you feel its comforting warmth. You feel its soothing, healing power reaching deep down into your bronchial tubes. You feel it penetrating through and through the irritated membranes.

This healing medication, absorbed into the membranes themselves, breaks up the cold, stops the cough, brings prompt and lasting relief.

If you are catching cold; if you have a "head cold"; if your chest is tight; if you have a cough—even if bronchitis has developed—Ayer's Cherry Pectoral is your friend!

Cherry Pectoral is pleasant, safe and dependable—for children and grown people. At all druggists—50c; twice as much, $1.00. Sale

Smith Water Power Bills

For an Authority Similar to That of New York Authority—Appointed by Governor of Three Members Provided.

Albany, Jan. 23 (P).—Democratic bills to a solution of the water power problem are in the hands of the Legislature.

Bills embodying proposals of Governor Smith for a state water power authority were introduced last night by Senator Bernard Dowling and Assemblyman Maurice Bloch, Democratic minority leaders. The bills call for an authority quite similar to the port of New York authority and the Albany port commission which would investigate the situation and report next January with its findings. It must obtain specific authority from the Legislature before it may proceed with water power development.

Under the terms of the bill, appointment by the governor of three members without salary is provided. Expenses will be met by an appropriation of $100,000 and the authority would be permitted to employ engineers, bankers and lawyers and to own property, borrow money and make contracts.

The policy of the state, the bill declares, is to "preserve alienable that natural water power resources of the state, to develop them at the lowest practicable cost, so far as practicable without the aid of state funds or state credit, and to provide for the people, light, heat and power at the lowest practicable cost."

"The authority would look into the available water power resources of the state, horsepower which can be developed, estimated demand for the power by consumers, cost of development in stages, estimated capital expenditures, available agencies for power distribution, and suitable provisions by which, after payment of all operating and maintenance charges, interest on the sums borrowed may be paid and the cost amortized over a period of time."

Bring O'Connor Herefrom Chicago

Man Wanted in Ellenville Arrested in Chicago—Waived Extradition and Was Brought to Kingston.

Jerry O'Connor, wanted at Ellenville on a charge of larceny, was apprehended at Chicago by the authorities who had been notified to look out for him. Deputy Sheriff Ralph Constable was sent there by Sheriff Rice after O'Connor had waived extradition and was returned to Ulster county. Deputy Sheriff Constable and O'Connor arrived in Kingston Monday night and this morning in company with Under Sheriff Doyle the prisoner was taken to Ellenville for arraignment before Justice Byrne Moore.

It is alleged that O'Connor helped himself to a sum of money and jewelry at Ellenville some time ago and left for parts unknown. However, Assistant District Attorney Murray had an idea that O'Connor would head west and notified several places. Among the places notified was Chicago. When O'Connor landed in Chicago he was picked up and the local authorities were notified.

Stone Ridge Farm And Home Bureau

Stone Ridge Farm and Home Bureau members and their friends and neighbors will get together at the grange hall in Stone Ridge on Friday, January 28. For this meeting three excellent speakers have been secured from Cornell. Subjects to be covered are the legume campaign and farm management.

Professor J. H. Burrow, who has already spoken on the legume campaign at several meetings, will handle this subject. Professor Hall's talk will be directed toward the making of adjustments in the farm business to meet present day conditions.

House Bureau members will serve a hot lunch at 12:30. They cordially invite all to be on hand for dinner. The morning session will open promptly at 10 o'clock in order to give both Professors Burrow and Hall opportunity to speak before luncheon. Program for the day is as follows:

10:00 a. m.—Adjustments necessary to meet present conditions, J. H. Hall.

11:00 a. m.—The Ulster County Legume Campaign, J. H. Burrow.

12:30 p. m.—Luncheon.

1:30 p. m.—Farm Management Continued, J. H. Hall.

2:30 p. m.—Legumes and How to Grow Them, J. H. Burrow.

Trolley Car Mishap

AXLE; JUMPED TRACKS

This morning one of the trolley cars while passing the Orphanage Theatre on lower Broadway broke an axle and the car jumped the tracks, turning about half way across the street. The car did not turn over and most of the passengers were injured. The wrecking crew from the car barn was called and the car was taken to the barn for repairs.

Ancient Church Organ

Frederick H. Allen, an expert on organ history, says that the oldest pipe organ in America is in an Episcopal church at Oyster Bay, N. Y. It was built by the Queen Anne of England and given by her to St. Andrew's church in New York, which community passed it along to the congregation in Oyster Bay. It is a genuine antique, with only 120 pipes and no console.

Fruit Growers To Meet Monday

Fruit growers in Southern Ulster and Northern Orange counties are planning well in advance to attend the meeting called by the Ulster County Farm Bureau to be held in St. Mary's Hall, Marlborough, on Monday, January 31. The speaker who has been secured for the meeting is Professor A. J. Heinicke, of the pomological research department at Cornell University. Professor Heinicke is planning on assisting growers in carrying out their plans to cut down the cost of their fertilizing materials and will direct all of his guns on this problem. "Sometimes," says Professor Heinicke, "it takes a big jar to settle things down," and in his opinion the present price of apples has jarred growers down where they want to settle and lessen the cost of production problem. It has been pointed out recently as well as years ago that the "price" is higher when the "cost of production" is lower. Growers with high production costs this year, have failed to find a price anywhere near satisfying.

Professor Heinicke will be amply supplied with information on the fertilizing practices of the Marlborough-Milton section when he arrives for the meeting. He has conferred recently with Professor G. W. Peck of Cornell and E. M. Wigsten, of the local Farm Bureau, and assembled the figures compiled on a fertilizer survey made on the farms of thrifty growers. With these facts at hand he can discuss the local situation and compare practices with the practices recommended by experiment stations and leading agricultural colleges. It is his belief he has material to present that will cause enormous savings to be made by growers on fertilizer bills alone.

The committeemen in charge of the meeting wish to make it clear that this is a joint meeting for Milton and Marlborough communities and that all fruit growers interested in their orchard fertility problems are invited to attend. Those in charge of the meeting are: For Milton, Peter J. McManus, Westervelt Clark; for Marlborough, W. Y. Velle, Benjamin Chiffure, Ed. Quimby, W. J. Haviland. The meeting will open promptly at 10:30 a. m. and continue until 4 p. m. A recess of one hour will be taken at 12:30 for dinner.

DR. FASSETT OPENS OFFICE IN KINGSTON

Dr. Edwin C. Fassett, who for the last twenty years has practiced in New York city, has opened an office at 83 Green street, where he can be found daily. He will take the place of the late Dr. E. D. B. Loughran as attending surgeon at the Kingston City Hospital in the eye, ear, nose and throat department.

Dr. Fassett was born in Kingston and after attending Kingston Academy and Georgetown University, was graduated from the College of Physicians and Surgeons of Columbia University. After a residence as house physician in St. Vincent's Hospital he began the practice of his specialties. For the past ten years he has been chief of clinic at Midtown Nose, Throat and Ear Hospital and was assistant to the late Professor Robert Reese at the New York Eye and Ear Infirmary. During the World War he was regimental surgeon of the 165th Pioneer Infantry. Dr. Fassett's parents were residents of this city for more than fifty years.

Dr. and Mrs. Fassett are living at the Governor Clinton Hotel.

FAVORS BILL TO PERMIT WOMEN ON JURIES

Albany, N. Y., Jan. 23 (P).—Mrs. Rhoda Fox Graves, only woman member of the New York legislature, has come out in favor of a bill designed to permit women to serve on juries.

"If women are capable of helping make the laws," Mrs. Graves said, "they should be permitted to help enforce them."

The woman jurors bill recently was introduced under the sponsorship of the National Woman's Party and other women's organizations.

Gay Colors Mark New Resort Garb

Windows Bright With Southern Attire Indicate Brilliant Mode.

Black and white combinations are featured for southern wear, along with the bright hues of red, grey, greens, beige and pink. These hues in crepe de chine, jersey, kasha and cashmere, are among the outstanding things that mark the resort attire. Tucks and tiny folds, up and down, crosswise, and diagonally, trim many frocks of one material. Smocking is also used, especially on dresses of jersey cloth, which, because of its softness, is particularly adaptable to this type of trimming. Usually such smocking is done in contrasting color, giving a bit more chic to an otherwise dull-colored frock.

Shoes for daytime southern wear are to be found in combinations of black and white, or brown and white, ranging from pumps, to oes and two straps and the sport ex-fords. Evening shoes are elaborate beyond all precedent, cut away to the sole in many instances and fastened with jeweled ties. Materials for these are of crepe de chine combined with kid in colors of pink and gold, black satin and silver kid, black satin and gold kid with jeweled ties, and cornflower crepe de chine encrusted with silver kid.

Beside these are raffia pumps, beach sandals, and low heeled sports shoes in most marvelous cuts and combinations. Truly, the woman who gathers an outfit for resort wear, must look carefully to the item of shoes, for they are of such line and quality as to display her good taste or mark her as being just a lap behind the last word in smart gowning.

For those who must face the chill winds of winter are no less intriguing garments. Colors may fall a little short in brilliance, but in cut and materials there is no lack of variety.

Among the still popular outfits are the two-piece frock, and the ensemble of frock and coat. Furs are elaborate, and beautiful, and designed for every occasion. Could mildly afford a wardrobe of these, she would have her rough and ready morning fur for the shopping trip, a semi-formal coat for afternoon wear, and an evening wrap of ermine or sable, dyed in most exquisite tints.

In two-piece frocks designs are without number. The corded, or tucked effect is much employed for trimming where there is no color introduced, but in others bright bands and embroidery to give the touch demanded by the present vogue. Crepes, kashas, jerseys, in fact all the materials used in southern garb, are to be found in winter garments designed for colder climates. The main difference lies in hues which are a little more subdued.

Black Solves Problem in Matter of Economy

With an infinite variety in color to bewilder the woman when she goes shopping for a winter coat, black finds many advocates. Jenny advises it for economy's sake and because it settles the color question at the same stroke. Black fabric with a rough surface for winter wear should come first, according to this designer. If the clothes allowance is limited, the cost of color runs up into real money. It is here that the black coat bridges the gulf between wearing one color and enjoying the variety of a varicolored wardrobe. Nearly any shade may be chosen to wear under the black coat and with matching or black accessories makes a limited sum go much farther.

Dark blue and brown are the two colors which must not be attempted with the black wrap. Another point to be observed in the selection of a black coat is that the lining must be of self color or the choice of colors for the trim is limited to those in harmony with the lining.

Just One Flag Short

By N. L. ROE

(Copyright.)

"HORRORS!" exclaimed Patricia as, at a pretty picture in her war nurse's uniform, she sorted out wreaths and bouquets and flags for the Memorial day program. "They're sent us only twenty flags and there are twenty-one veterans' graves to decorate."

"Can't you get hold of another one?" asked her assistant anxiously.

"Goodness, no, not now," said Patty bravely. "They're searching the junkyard already. There—the drums corps has started to play. Here, catchably, here's your wreath, and yours, and yours—" hastily she paraded out the green laurel wreaths. Then, with an air of despair, she sped out of the obsequious door and across lots to the little cemetery on the hill to place the flags on the graves before the children arrived.

This was an annual affair at West Creek and for five years now Patricia had supervised it though generally she had driven every outsider to West Creek was barred and now, as she stood on the quiet hillside, she knew she faced something of a problem.

It was impossible to have one soldier without a flag. The oldest veteran of West Creek boasted some descendants to look out for his interests. Even old Jerry Cooper who had not originally belonged to West Creek had a great nephew, one Jim Cooper, who every year brought a great bouquet of flowers to lay on the old man's last resting place. And it would never do to slight old Jerry.

For Patricia had just gotten through with an engagement of two years' standing with that same Jimmy Cooper and there would be plenty to say afterwards, "Why, Patricia is so sure at Jim she wouldn't even put a flag on his great uncle's grave!"

Patricia sped from one grave to the other until on every one there were flags. In the summer breeze the colorful cushions for which the men resting so peacefully beneath had laid down their life. That is, on every one but that of old Jerry's. Patricia had made up her mind that when the children had finished with one side of the cemetery she would surreptitiously remove one of the first flags and set it on Jerry's grave before the children reached there. To do so without being seen, she would have to start the climb by a little used path through the juniper bushes.

Gradually the children wound up the drive, their fresh voices rising in one of their school songs. When they reached the foot of the flag they divided and scattered their wreaths and flowers as directed. Patricia picked up a flag and hurried up the hill.

Now all it was left to do was to have been married in soon. Since their quarrel, which had been one of those absurdly trivial affairs to start with that all of a sudden assume undue importance, she had only seen Jim in the presence of others and had carefully avoided any opportunity of being alone with him.

Recently, she had heard rumors that Jim was calling on an attractive girl over in Northford and that made it really impossible for her to make the first advances. Funny, come to think of it, that you could be engaged to a man for two whole years and then have him drop out of your life as completely as if he had never entered it.

Patricia sighed and turned in the direction of Jerry's grave. The children were climbing the hill by way of the drive and time was short. Just as she emerged from the old path, she saw that some one was standing at old Jerry's grave with his back turned towards her. With a feeling of dismay, she remembered Jim's habit of bringing flowers to his uncle's grave each Memorial day. That was Jim now. What should she do?

She hesitated, realizing that the children were coming nearer and that the flag in her hand must be placed on old Jerry's grave before they arrived. Then, with sudden resolution, she stepped forward and with bent head, inserted the flag in the green mound, brushing Jim's leg with her white skirt as she did so.

As she turned, she could not resist one swift glance at his face and the memory she saw there, the love and longing in his eyes, made her tremble. With a sudden impulse, she seized his hand and drew him back to the shelter she had just left.

And there they stood, facing one another and not knowing just what to say, like two quite silly children. The responsibility was really Patricia's but it was Jim who made the first move.

"Patty," he said huskily, "Oh, Patty! I have wanted so to get a chance to explain—to tell you I love you and only you—"

"And that there's no other girl in Northford?" asked Patty, eagerly. "Of course, there isn't," cried Jim. "What an idea! There never was and never will be any other girl for me than you."

Patricia, with a deep sigh of contentment, yielded to Jim's arms, sure that they were concealed from observation. "By the way," she said, "what did we quarrel about?"

Jim frowned, then shook his head. "I don't remember," he said. "I don't remember."

KINGSTON, N. Y., JAN. 25, 1927.

Two young Poles of Warsaw have been systematically robbing the rich and distributing the money among the poor. They must have forgotten that Robin Hood, though an admitted hero among boys, can hardly be accepted as a model by men in these times.

According to a New York literary critic, "free verse is an dead as free lunch." This is good news, but its welcome would be incomplete without a reminder to faded critics, temporarily interested in anything if only it is "different," that their hoisting was responsible for the vogue of a literary fraud.

New York having boasted that it has less crime than Chicago, Philadelphia or Detroit, a Chicago professor announces that there is no more lawlessness in his windy town than "in Los Angeles, Memphis, Kansas City, or any one of twenty other American cities." Even if quite true, this seems to leave New York still in undisturbed possession of its claim.

The "gentleman farmer" of these times is a large capitalist with one or more country estates on parts of which crops are grown. Reginald C. Vanderbilt having claimed that his "farm" had been run at a loss of $80,000 in three years, and the loss ought to be deducted from his gross income for taxation purposes, the Board of Tax Appeals decided that such a "farm" was "not a business conducted for profit" and the deduction could not be allowed.

OUR YOUNG OLD MEN.

Young men to the fore and largely in control of all activities of what ever sort—such is the European idea of the situation in the United States. There had been previous assertions, even seeming indications, that this country was saved from dry rot by active young men, and the war proved it to European observers. Did not the French see captains and even majors in the American army who were still in their twenties, and lieutenant colonels and even colonels still in their thirties? Though amazingly inappropriate from their view, did not French officers everywhere come in contact with American officers who were ten to twenty years younger than they were? And yet this impression, widespread at home as well as abroad, calls for considerable modification.

For now statistical investigation shows that the average age of our leading executives today is sixty, the youngest group being the bankers who average fifty-five years of age. Herein is provided surprise not only for Europeans but for Americans who somehow have received the impression that this country's business is conducted by men in the forties. It is worthy of note, however, that these controlling Americans of 60 and 65 are younger in spirit and more vigorous in body than were men of the same age several decades ago. This is due partly to the increasing span of life from various causes and partly to the sabbat management of the affairs of business men so as to permit them much more recreation and relaxation. They have wisely learned to "play" not a little even while their work continues as well done as ever.

LUMBER EXHAUSTION.

Both men and nature have a way of taking care of themselves, or at least of making the best of it, under changed conditions. This seems to have been overlooked when the forestry experts recently assembled in London solemnly predicted that the world's supply of lumber, at the present rate of consumption, will be exhausted in twenty-five years. If the prediction should be fulfilled, the United States and the other newer countries will follow the example long ago set by Europe of using brick and stone for building purposes, so as to conserve the sections where wood came more. Substitution of various kinds always seems to be employed as soon as the original article becomes too costly. But this prediction, like many another, may be fulfilled only to some extent. The very production of the forestry experts is likely to lead to more careful conservation, including replanting as well as less reckless cutting. Let us hope so, at least. Pessimistic predictions based on sweeping generalizations serve a useful purpose by their very exaggeration, the consequent alarm resulting in remedial effort. Some thirty years ago Sir William Crookes attracted wide attention by his prediction that in twenty-five years the world's supply of wheat would fail to support the increased population and famine or semi-famine would follow. What effect this had on wheat culture and the extension of acreage, if any, is uncertain, but it is certain that the world is still well supplied with bread.

MOVIES AND THE EYES.

A few years ago our eye specialists were warning us about the bad effects of the motion pictures on the eyes.

The vibration of the rapidly moving pictures prevented a continued focus of the eyes on the screen, and the constant change the muscles of the eyes had to make to follow the vibrating picture was injurious to the eyes.

As many folks may be foregoing the pleasure of seeing a good picture because they fear the bad effect upon the eyes, it will be gratifying to know that our moving picture photographers have been able to so perfect their work, that this danger to the eyes has been practically removed.

Two Los Angeles research men, Drs. Irvine and Weyman, have been experimenting with the effect of the moving picture on the eyes, as compared with reading the average magazine.

They used university students, junior high school children, aged about 14 to 15, and some business people of Los Angeles. 150 persons were examined.

After making three or four tests on each person to get the normal degree of vision "the subject was sent into the projection room and the picture began. The rest of the group followed at one-half minute periods. At the completion of the picture the subjects were taken out in the same order they went in, and immediate tests were made. Each subject watched the picture for an hour and a half. For testing the eyes with reading the same subjects were sent into well lighted room where they were required to read current magazines for a period of forty-five minutes, after which the same tests were made.

The results showed that of a group reading for forty-five minutes, about 42 per cent showed a lessening of their vision, while of the same group viewing a black and white picture only about 21 per cent showed a lessening of their vision.

In other words, viewing a picture for an hour and a half is not as hard on the eyes as reading for forty-five minutes.

And the lesson? That you should not pass up a good picture thinking it hurts the eyes. It is not only not harmful, but is really a relaxation for body and mind.

TODAY'S STORY IN NEW YORK HISTORY

By Frederic A. Godchaux
 (Copyright, 1927, by the Author)

First Dutch Protestant Minister Arrived on Manhattan, January 25, 1625.

It was long supposed that the Reverend Everardus Bogardus was the first Reformed Church clergyman in America, but the precedence of the Reverend Jonas Michaelius has been established by a letter from him to the Reverend Adrian Emoutius, dated New Amsterdam, August 11, 1625, which was recently found in the Dutch archives at the Hague. In this letter he describes the degraded state of the natives, and proposes to educate their children without trying to redeem the parents.

The Reverend Jonas Michaelius, of the Dutch Church, was born in Holland in 1577, and was educated in the public schools, and at the age of twenty-three entered the University of Leyden, from which he was graduated, and studied for the ministry.

He received a call to two villages in North Holland, and was settled as a pastor at Hem, from 1612 to 1615. Here he was married.

The young domine did not fear adventures by land or sea, and in 1624, when Admiral Piet Hein took Brazil, Michaelius was sent out to be minister of the Dutch Church at Bahia, or San Salvador. The Portuguese recaptured the place next year, and Domine Michaelius then became chaplain of the fort in Guinea.

He returned to Holland in 1627. On two continents, South America and Africa, Michaelius had learned to know all sorts of conditions and characters of men of many colors.

One of his voyages made with a man, then first mate, who later as a captain brought him to America. This man was a brute and drunkard, and after a stormy voyage, the domine, his three little daughters and their mother arrived on Manhattan, January 25, 1625.

His wife could not endure the hardships of the long voyage, and the privations in the new settlement, and died shortly after her arrival, and her body filled one of the first graves in the little cemetery.

Domine Michaelius was thus the first minister of the Dutch Protestant Church in America. He organized a consistory and administered the sacraments. He had been in Africa and could judge fairly well concerning certain of the red man's deficiencies. He was not well impressed with the Indians, whom he found "entirely savage and wild, strangers to all decency, you, uncivil and stupid, as garden poles." The Domine's heart yearned for the little folks in the woods, and believed it would be well to leave the parents as they were, and begin with the children when still young.

At the first opportunity Domine Michaelius visited the Dutch inhabitants in their bark houses, and proposed to organize a church. For his deacons he chose Governor Minuit and Captain Krol from up the river at Fort Orange.

The Dutch were not behind the founders of Massachusetts or Virginia in worship, while they were ahead of them in completed church life. The first fully organized Reformed, or Protestant Church in America began on Manhattan and in 1625. This was not merely a place of worship, as at Jamestown, nor part of the congregation with lay elders, as at Plymouth, but the full corporation, with salaried minister, board of officers and communicants forming a congregation same as today. Such was the first Dutch Church in North America. The pastor administered the sacrament to Dutch, Walloon and French in their own language.

This first church was in the fort, and met in the loft of the horse mill, located in the rear of what is now Nos. 20 and 28 South William street.

The first floor was occupied with the mill, the second with the school, supplied by horses. On the second floor were the bays of flour, where on Sundays the Dutch met in worship.

The highest Dutch social life was closely associated with this Church. It nourished a spirit of democracy, besides maintaining the schools, his pastors and educated men furnished support for the teachers of the boys and girls. It was the seed bed for the sprouting of the American, as opposed to aristocratic British notions.

The language, customs and traditions still linger, and when New Netherland ceased to be, the Dutch Church and people remained a potent element in the making of American institutions.

Reverend Michaelius returned to Holland prior to the arrival of his successor, Reverend Bogardus, in 1625, and the classis of Amsterdam, wished to send him back to this country in 1627, but he did not return. He died in Holland after 1628.

Clinic Friday for Problem Children

On Friday, January 28, a clinic for problem and backward children will be held at the Ulster County Building, 74 John street, Kingston, between the hours of 9 a. m. and 4 p. m.

The physician, Dr. Walter N. Thayer, Jr., from Napaoh, and Miss L. Lindeman, field agent from the State Department of Mental Hygiene, are both specialists with children who are irritable, quarrelsome, hard to manage, nervous or retarded in mental or physical development.

Those presenting children to this clinic are advised as to how the child can be benefited. All children should be accompanied by someone who can give the examiner a good history of the child's development and habits. Appointments should be made in advance through Mrs. Mary Doremus, State Charities Aid Association, 74 John street, Kingston.

Your Income Tax

YOUR INCOME TAX.
 No. 8.

Under the revenue act of 1926 the maximum amount which may be claimed as earned income, to which a credit of 25 per cent applies, is increased from $10,000 to $20,000. To claim this credit on the tax due on net income in excess of $5,000, the income must actually be earned as "wages, salaries, professional fees, and other amounts received as compensation for personal services."

In computing the earned income credit, the surtax, which applies to incomes in excess of $10,000, is taken into consideration for the first time under the revenue act of 1926. The tax on an earned net income of $20,000 is computed in the case of a married man without dependents as follows:

Net income	$20,000.00
Less personal exemption	3,500.00
Balance, taxable	16,500.00
1 1/2 per cent tax on first $4,000	60.00
3 per cent on the second $4,000	120.00
5 per cent tax on remaining $8,500	425.00
Surplus on net income of $20,000	220.00
Total normal and surtax	825.00
Less 25 per cent of $825 earned income credit	206.25
Balance of tax payable	$618.75

The surtax rates apply to net incomes in excess of $10,000. The maximum surtax rate is now reduced to 20 per cent, which applies to net incomes in excess of $100,000, instead of a maximum rate of 40 per cent on net incomes in excess of $500,000, as provided by the revenue act of 1924.

L'Aiglon Death Mask

The world has long been familiar with more or less idealized portraits of that pathetic figure of the Napoleonic era, the Duke of Reichstadt, king of Rome, known in the sphere of art as "L'Aiglon." According to Vienna newspapers, his authentic death mask, made by Franz Klein, has been found and will presently be exhibited either in the Vienna Burg or in the Castle of Schonbrunn. The unhappy youth died in 1832, and his death mask was made by the same artist who five years before had made that of Beethoven.

To Save Chinese Babies

Efforts to stop the abandonment of girl babies in China are being made by the officials of the public health demonstration station which was established in Peking a little more than a year ago. The doctors say that the greater part of the high death rate, which is three times that of the average city, is due to the traditional prejudice in the country against females, and that when a family is poor the parents usually abandon girl babies. It is hoped to establish free clinics which will help to educate the poor against the practice.

Free Lecture At High School

A free lecture under the auspices of Kingston Council, No. 275, Knights of Columbus, will be given on Tuesday, February 1, at 8:15 o'clock, by Dr. James J. Walsh, nationally known lecturer, scholar and writer, in the Kingston High School auditorium. The public is cordially extended an invitation to hear Dr. Walsh, who has made a prolonged study of Mexico, and the address is prompted by the enthusiasm of those who have a wide interest in the Mexican situation at present. Dr. Walsh, knowing Mexican history as he does, thoroughly explains in his address the causes of the upheaval in the social, economic, political and religious life of the southern nation and the attitude he believes the American people should take toward the Mexican crisis. The lecture is given as part of the Knights of Columbus million dollar campaign against Bolshevism on this continent.

ELEANOR GUNN ON FASHIONS

RED TURN TO FUCHSIA AND RASPBERRY BY WAY OF VARIETY, AND THE NEW PRINTS ARE MODERNISTIC.

Paris.—It seems rather a logical sequence of events to have framboise, or raspberry shade, follow red. It also is easily understandable why all the fuchsia shades have been revived, for the feeling for warmth in color is unquestionable. Pastel is among those who experiment successfully with these tones, yet it is not really from the various collections shown in Paris that one gets the idea of the importance of purple, but from the several ultra-chic women one finds wearing it.

Gray and purple, naturally complementary, usually, if not always, become fashionable at about the same time. Everyone expects gray to be good for spring, in spite of the difficulty and expense of assembling a gray costume. There can be nothing haphazard about the tones, they must be matched. One expects that the gray costume, to be elegant, must be an ensemble, unless gray is used in deliberate contrast, as with purple, its best foil, or with navy or black.

Wine-Red Chiffon Is Chosen to Trim a Frock of Printed Chiffon, Introducing Large Floral Patterns in Red and Black on a White Ground. Gold Embroideries Add a Decorative Touch, and a Sheen Is Provided in the Black Satin Slip.

Color contrast is still the vogue, but, after all, it is a matter of preference whether one carries out a monotone scheme or one in two or three colors. If there are any written or unwritten laws in the matter, they would appear to be that the sports costume be in two or three tones, that the evening dress may be the same, and that the street costume be in one color throughout.

There appears to be a feeling that prints will be worn again for resort wear, and for summer. They were, after all, overdone only in America, where we are inclined to over-enthusiasm. The new prints are very modernistic both in color and design. The feeling that Algeria, and Africa generally, has not exhausted its inspiration prevails, and designers have taken refuge in the cult of modernism.

"OLD DAIRY HOMESTEAD" TO BE REPEATED

The "Old Dairy Homestead" was put over in fine style last Thursday evening by Immanuel mixed choir of the Livingston Street Lutheran Church. Despite the inclement weather, a fine crowd turned out to see it. At a little past 8 o'clock the Junior orchestra, with their able leader, Gustav Koch, took their places in the pit and rendered several excellent selections. From the wink of the footlights until the final moments of act three the audience showed its satisfaction by spontaneous applause. Charles Petri, Sr., as Jason, the farmer, and Freda Elmer as Becky got "meat" to the audience right from the start. The scenery surrounding their country home was a pretty sight. Mrs. Glimmer, the old widow, in the person of Betty Elmer, was professionally played. Francis Wiedemann, who played the part of the farmer's niece, played her part without a hitch and won the sympathy of all. Mildred Thiel, as Ruby, the wait, kept the audience in gay spirits throughout the play. Albert Studd, as the town constable, brought the house to its feet. His battle with the branded woman, Charles Petri, Jr., who played the part of Malcolm Gray, the villain, was at his best. He got the confidence of the people from the start. Bill Bredenbach as the Irish cook was a scream, and George C. Bode as the townsman brought a burst of applause every time he appeared. It would be difficult to pick out the star player as each one played his part exceptionally well. We request this entertainment will be given again on Wednesday, January 25, at 8:15 p. m.

Armstrong's improvisation was a charming act of the play and a large audience is expected to be present. The committee promises will be a performance of sterling quality.

Medicinal Flowers

The cultivation of flowers in the Middle Ages was not merely a delight, a beauty, or a hobby, but a science. They were used to keep away evil spirits. They were prized for medicinal value, made into love philters and adopted as emblems of rival camps and factions.

Daddy's Evening Fairy Tale

by MARY GRAHAM BONNER

SUNLIGHT AND SNOW

John and Trotty, age eleven and ten, had started forth in a sleigh for a supper party that was being given some distance from where they lived, down through the woods.

John had been allowed to drive Daniel, the horse, and they had gone off later than the others in their sleighs had left because Trotty had had chores to do for her family.

But after they had gone along for awhile there had started a dreadful blizzard.

They had made a wrong turn when the landmarks had become blurred by the blinding snow, and had found themselves right in the heart of the woods.

Instead of having come on a regular road they had cut off and had gone on a road that led to a lumber camp. There the sleigh had upset as Daniel, the horse, had become excited.

But both John and Trotty had behaved splendidly, each not making a fuss, each being unselfish, calm and level-headed.

Then, after they had turned the sleigh, the blizzard had seemed to start once more with fresh fury.

John had said to himself that he was really not able to see anything. But he had not said this aloud.

"Suppose we get off on another lumber camp path," thought Trotty. But she did not express her thought aloud.

"I won't get excited, I won't," thought Daniel, the horse, as he trotted on valiantly.

And the wind had howled, and the snow had taken possession of the world and the blizzard had seemed to say:

"We have those two and that horse in our power now! Yes, we have! But the blizzard did not know the boy and the girl and the horse, who arrived, safely, two hours late at the party."

Those at the party had worried. They had not even begun their supper.

But now the excitement of the evening and the storm and the upset sleigh seemed all quite forgotten. They talked and ate and laughed and answered questions. But Trotty's mother, who was giving the party, decided they would not go back that night.

It was morning and bright sunlight when all the sleighs started for home once again. There was no wind, the storm was over, and the world looked as though it were always just as quiet and peaceful and simple as this.

The going was slow, as the snow was deep and soft and nowhere had it been trodden down. But the sun, shining on the snow, the air warm and dry and clear, danced a dance of jewels and shadows.

John and Trotty were locked upon no heroes to all save themselves. They only felt closer to that part of the world that belonged to them, where even a blizzard could not conquer them but only made them feel a truer kinship with their own corner of the world—with the sea and forests, warm sunshine and bitter winds.

"It didn't get the better of us," John said, thankfully.

"It did not," agreed Trotty.

Have It Over With

Mildred, aged seven, never had any difficulty in obtaining money for a show from her parents, but her little piggy bank always had to cry about half an hour before she got it.

One afternoon Mildred was getting dressed for the show and said to her mother: "Mama, you go home now and start crying, or when I get ready you'll be crying."

Changed His Tune

Billy and Janet were brother and sister, six and three. When Janet refused to climb out of his mother's wagon Billy turned on her in a rage, saying, "Climb out of my wagon, you bad, nasty, stubborn," at which moment their mother appeared on the scene. Billy finished his attack by saying, "Little sweetheart, you!"

FRENCH COOKING

There is much to be said for starting at least one meal a day with a good hot nourishing soup. The following are a few called from French cuisine:

Chestnut Soup.—Put into a saucepan a cupful of shelled chestnuts. Cook on a slow fire without boiling for half an hour, then remove the brown skin. Put the chestnuts into a mortar with a slice of dry bread and pound to a paste, adding a little bouillon to soften the bread from time to time. Pass through a strainer, add bouillon and cook for another half hour. Serve with croûtons.

Onion Soup.—Peel six large onions, cut into thin slices. Cool lightly in butter. When partially browned add a tablespoonful of flour and continue cooking until the mixture is brown. Add water, salt and pepper and cook for a half hour or until the onions are tender. Strain if desired and serve on toast with grated cheese.

Pot au Feu.—The meat used is a piece of stew or shoulder or leg. Many cooks think the addition of the bones and feet of a chicken add the best flavor. Cover with cold water and simmer for two hours, skimming once or twice. No odd vegetables such as carrots, turnips, parsnips, leeks and onions, with a sprig of thyme, a clove of garlic and two bay leaves with a stalk of celery. Cabbage and potatoes, too, may be added. Add a little kitchen bouquet to give a brown color. Serve very hot when the vegetables are cooked.

Chicken Bouillon.—Take a pound of stewing meat, and an old rooster or lean poulet, cut into small pieces, cover with cold water and simmer; when it has begun to simmer add seasoning—an onion stuck with cloves, a few herbs and carrots and turnips cut into bits. Cook until the meat is very tender. Drain and serve.

Bouts at K. of C. Smoker Pleased A Record Crowd

Carpio and Meek in Main Exhibition, Displayed Camaraderie Skill and Strength—Other Contests and Amusement.

Lecturer Bill Dwyer turned the lights of Columbus auditorium into a miniature Madison Square Garden Monday evening, when he staged one of the best regulated smokers ever produced here, despite the fact that many were turned away. At 7 o'clock the crowd began assembling and by 8 on the time the hall was crowded to capacity. The only adverse feature of the entertainment was that there was not enough room to carp for all who wished to witness the bouts and entertainment.

The main bout of the event and the one for which the fans could hardly wait was one of the most interesting mitt contests ever put on in this vicinity—a combination of Vince Hart's cleverness and Johnny Carpio's endurance.

For six rounds these boys demonstrated that they had been training in earnest for this bout, for both fought over the route in perfect condition. Hart shot across several strong blows, but they never stopped Carpio from coming on. The first three rounds the boxers took matters easy but a few hard blows started them on in earnest in the final rounds. Hart was very steady throughout and he kept his opponent busy over the entire space.

Fast Bout—Final Bout.

The Fisher-Hyatt affair was a thriller and the boys furnished the fans with plenty to hold their attention throughout the contest. Special interest was taken in the fourth round when the two boxers assumed a wild punching attitude and mixed things up in general.

Mike Sarkies and his opponent, Owens of Poughkeepsie, kept the crowd eagerly attentive and at one time it was thought a knockout in favor of Sarkies would terminate the contest but plans were not completed and Owens fought on.

Joe Vordick of Saugerties and Jerry Samperi of Poughkeepsie produced plenty of amusement for the fans. They started early to deal out the punches and Vordick was not on the receiving end of many blows from the Poughkeepsie pugilist. The third round was the high light of the fight and Samperi displayed what he had in this portion. He did not endanger Vordick however as Joe dealt out an equal amount of punishment.

Louis Carpio and Kid Mitchell, the boys who opened the program, did very nicely in the big ring.

Musical Program.

There were musical numbers between the bouts. DeKoskie and Levine, two local ukulele players, pleased the gathering with their renditions of popular songs. Harry and Al Kingston acrobats, displayed feats seldom seen anywhere but on the big circuits. Mike Plukus and John Erce also delighted the audience with musical numbers. The Imperial Orchestra rendered the musical program.

Ed Houlihan refereed the opening bouts and Edward R. Cashin the main affairs. Ed. Scherer was the announcer.

(By the Associated Press.)

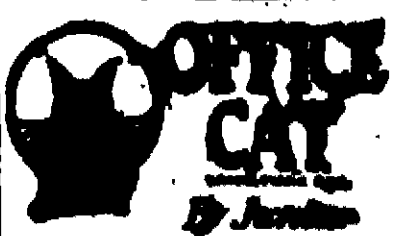

Pittsburgh—Pete Latzo, world's welterweight champion, beat Jimmy Jones, Youngstown, Ohio, ten rounds. Title not at stake.

New York—Andre Routis of France beat Patsy Mack, Jersey City, Rochester—Phil O'Dowd, Columbus, Ohio, beat Phil Verde, Rochester, six rounds.

Philadelphia—Al Freeman, Washington, beat Mike Ballerino, Bayonne, N. J., ten rounds. Al Gordon, Philadelphia, beat Robert Serrano, Paris, France, ten rounds. Georgia McLeod, Brooklyn, knocked out My Mike, Washington, four rounds.

The Gas Industry Announces

The Establishment of a Testing Laboratory to Insure Your Obtaining Gas Appliances Which Are:

Convenient
Well Constructed
Efficient
Safe

All gas appliances sold by our company bear the Blue Star, certifying that each device is manufactured according to specifications set up by the American Gas Association.

One of the outstanding developments in the gas industry during recent months has been the establishment of an appliance testing laboratory by the American Gas Association.

In this laboratory gas ranges, water heaters, space heaters, tubing, house heating equipment, in fact all appliances used in the household for the utilization of gas are subjected to rigid tests.

They are tested for safety, efficiency, construction, and all around utility. If they pass these searching tests, the Blue Star of merit is awarded and the manufacturer is permitted to use this star upon his product.

If an appliance fails to meet the requirements it is denied the use of the Blue Star symbol.

The Central Hudson Gas & Electric Corporation is a member of the American Gas Association. It heartily endorses the plan which provides for a laboratory where gas burning appliances can be tested.

Further, it supplies its customers with appliances which have met the requirements. Only Blue Star equipment is sold. The Blue Star is a protection against inferiority. Our customers are entitled to the best and the Blue Star is their insurance against poor equipment.

Gas is one of the great contributions to modern living. But gas without appliances in which to burn it is useless. Poor appliances impose an unfair handicap. Therefore we provide our customers only with laboratory tested appliances which are built to render the best service possible.

Ask for gas appliances which have met Blue Star requirements.

CHRYSLERS DEFEATED OVERLAND WHIPPET FIVE

The Chrysler are completed their twenty-sixth victory at the Salvation Army court Monday night when they played a preliminary game with the Overland-Whippets. The score was 27 to 21. The Chrysler did well considering that they were without the services of their crack point getter, Bill Scully, who is now playing with the high school and thus cannot engage in contests other than those played by the institution. Sport Briefs Of All Sorts

(By The Associated Press.)

Paulino Lucidun, Spanish heavy-weight, had the fiercest battle of his career in Cuba recently, but not in the ring, he declared on arrival in New York from Tampa, Fla. Paulino said three wild boys charged him while hunting and after shooting one, and clubbing the second to death with his gun, he was forced to kill the third with his bare hands when the gun broke. El Mundo, Havana newspaper, when informed of the exploit, wired: "Yes, but we have no wild bears."

Gene Tunney was back in New York today "on personal business." Billy Gibson, manager of the heavy-weight champion, said Tunney was "linked" doing "five a day" at some raverie house on his tour and had returned to have his theatrical contract renewed of the clause that requires so many performances. He intends to resume his tour in Spokane, Washington, when the matter is adjusted.

Vincent Richards would rank number one in American tennis for 1926 despite his turn to the professional scene at the close of the season. If William T. Tilden, deposed singles champion, were making up the list, The Metropolitan Lawn Tennis Association ranked Richards number 1 in the sectional list. "Richards is clearly entitled to number one ranking on the season's play," Tilden said.

on the other hand, it is not necessary to be dogmatic and intolerant in the standing for our convictions.

After talking with young people who were part of a group of young couples intensely interested in making homes for the future, Dr. Reagan said he had more faith in the possibility of Christian homes in the future than ever before. Only we must recognize the ideals of Christ who never recognized or accepted cruelty or bigotry. First of all must come the spiritual sense, the learning that spiritual values are infinitely greater than any money values. In this connection he told of the physical sacrifices made by a mother for her three children and the rare reward that was hers in their Christian homes and their love and devotion to her.

As his "Coats off to the Future," Dr. Reagan considered the real test of Christianity to be able to stand by one's convictions and at the same time love one's enemies. In closing his most unusual and impressive talk, Dr. Reagan told of Roland Hayes singing recently in Poughkeepsie where he was recalled again and again. Then he sang, which was of necessity the last song, "The Crucifixion," and with the description of this song and a simple, earnest prayer, Dr. Reagan closed his address.

A social hour, with the girls serving coffee and sandwiches, followed.

General Secretary's Report.

The annual report of Miss Ruth Lichty, general secretary, follows:

It is an unique experience to attempt to report a year's work done by an organization when practically three-fourths of the history of that work is known only by hearsay, through press notices, association records, conversations with individuals, no two of which agree on all details. Therefore it seems unnecessary to list and describe many of the events of 1926, for you know them so much better than I. The membership of our Kingston Association is essentially a participating membership. Very few of us sit in the galleries and look on—we prefer to march in the procession, and hence these reports which we hear tonight are not news, but family reminiscences. For purposes of keeping our records in good shape there are a few statistics—the stuff of which all annual reports are made—but surely in this group which works so closely together there is a common understanding of the human significance of these events.

This is the fourth annual meeting of our association and aside from the presentation of facts carefully and accurately recorded by my predecessor I can only humbly attempt to interpret our present situation. It does not take much insight to see that this infant organization has been blessed in its early years with wise leadership—we now have a well-trained staff. From now on I think we will be increasingly conscious of two forces at work both of which will stimulate and encourage us to continue to work in the pioneer spirit which has carried us through these first years.

First, we are beginning to feel "growing pains." The community has accepted the fact of our existence and has demonstrated its willingness to back our work financially. A striking example of this fact is the $5,000 bequest of the late Major Everett. Hence we are constantly challenged to prove our worth to the community by improving our work and more firmly establishing our position as one of the character-building agencies of this city. Consequently we must grow—and we must grow as a unit, we must grow as a group, we must grow as a community.

Secondly, in these days of rapid growth and change, we must be able to keep up with the times. We must be able to keep up with the times, we must be able to keep up with the times, we must be able to keep up with the times.

Three groups which are at the same time clubs and classes are also under the direction of the educational committee. These are the Schubert Choral Club, the Voice Club, and the Mandolin Club. The clubs are known to the public through their concerts and the Mandolin Club has had opportunity to cooperate with several of the churches.

A brief statistical summary of activities has been prepared to give some idea of the number of girls and women who go in and out of the building in the course of the year. The figures tell a story of their own, but the story is not complete unless we try to visualize them—little girls going on hikes, big girls coming to club suppers, women coming to classes, others learning to swim, committees and directors' meetings, making plans, keeping constantly in mind the purpose of the association which has been summarized up as our international motto in the words of Jesus: "I am come that they might have life and that they might have it more abundantly."

I conclude in this report a copy of a numerical report which has been given to each member attending the meeting.

Parties and Figures.
Since January 1, 1926, 176 girls and women have been placed by our Home Nursing Department.

197 girls have been members of the Schubert Choral Club.

128 Industrial Girls have come to church.

50 girls have belonged to one of the Musical Organizations.

44 women have attended Sunday and Wednesday classes.

321 girls have been active in the Youth Service Department in swimming, singing, basketball, bowling, baseball, etc.

126 women have served on standing committees and boards with a total attendance for all activities of

Will Celebrate C. E. Birthday

The Kingston Local-Union of Christian Endeavor will celebrate the birthday of the Christian Endeavor movement on Wednesday evening, February 2, with a social and special services in the parish house of the Church of the Comforter, and all Endeavorers and their friends are invited to attend.

The founding of the Christian Endeavor movement in Portland, Maine, forty-six years ago will be observed all around the world during the period January 30 to February 6.

The Rev. Dr. Francis E. Clark, who as a young minister founded the movement as the young people's training group in his own church, has seen Christian Endeavor reach millions of members. Today there are 4,000,000 members in the worldwide C. E. movement with societies in over a hundred countries and representing practically a hundred denominations of the Christian Church.

Dr. Clark is still the head of the movement which he founded, sharing its active leadership with Dr. Daniel A. Poling of New York city.

Now accumulated experience gives us a past. To be sure we need to guard ourselves against a false glorification of the past. Certain things we did successfully, but the things we did not do we will use again and again. Rather does the fact of the success of the effort obligate us to march forward and prove ourselves worthy of our heritage.

Of 1926 a few special events must be listed and with them some figures as to the number and size of various groups in our membership.

There was one resignation from the board of directors—that of Mrs. Everett Fowler. In November the board elected as her successor Mrs. Mae Perkins. By this time you are familiar with our policy of entrusting most of the leadership if the association to volunteers and it is significant that out of a voting membership of 464, 125 different women are actively serving on committees and as club leaders.

Considering first the club groups, figures do not indicate much change from last year but there are changes nevertheless. The Business Girls' Club has made real progress in the development of their own leadership and in program-building. Their six delegates to the summer conference brought back good program material some of which has already been successfully used. Two talks have been held for raising money—one in the spring and one in December. A fashion show in October in which several Kingston merchants cooperated was popular with the audience, financially successful, and had a certain educational value.

The group of Industrial Girls who enjoy coming to the building for lunch on Thursday has not yet attempted any formal program work, but the educational committee is considering and planning for some real club work for this group.

The Girl Reserves are a very active group in the membership and each year their advisors are trying new experiments in an attempt to build a recreational program which shall have real educational values, and which will not duplicate but supplement the training in the home, the school, and the church. There is a growing consciousness in all the club groups that we are a part of a national movement. This department also includes a small group of younger girls in business and industry. They meet in the evenings and their work is chiefly recreational.

The educational committee has promoted two inspirational meetings during the year, both addressed by Miss Margaret Slattery. Vocational guidance work was carried on in the high school during the spring months under a plan different from that of the previous year and also more successful. Informal conferences on ten different vocations for women were held in the school library one afternoon each week for ten weeks. The conferences were led by men and women of Kingston who have been eminently successful in their various fields. The same general plan is to be used again this year with one or two additional features.

Three groups which are at the same time clubs and classes are also under the direction of the educational committee. These are the Schubert Choral Club, the Voice Club, and the Mandolin Club. The clubs are known to the public through their concerts and the Mandolin Club has had opportunity to cooperate with several of the churches.

Flashes of Life Sketched in Brief

(By The Associated Press.)

New York—Carroll Cooney, all-American center on Ted Coy's team at Yale, is leading the strenuous life. He makes money in the lumber business by day and runs a professional dance orchestra at night for a hobby; incidentally finding time to play squash at the Yale Club and help boys it as one of the board of governors. "We play rhythms, not jazz," he explained. "That is, we save the melody." He plays the saxophone, mandolin, violin and a few other instruments himself.

And there's an All-Cooney orchestra that's heard only at home, consisting of Mr. and Mrs. Cooney and three boys who will be trying for the Yale musical club and football teams in a few years. The professional orchestra played for Prince Nicholas and Princess Ileana.

Port Arthur, Texas—The coffee guzzling record has been smashed again. D. Kinard, who sells real estate when he is not drinking coffee, downed 100 cups in seven hours, ten minutes.

Winnipeg—Harry Smet, a barber, is entitled to some recognition in this drinking business. True he downed only 36 cups of coffee in six hours, but he used a pint of beer as a chaser.

New York—In order to be wet the average New Yorker requires daily at least 25 gallons. That's an official compilation for the daily consumption of water.

Washington—Secretary Mellon thinks enactment of the pending bill for a government whiskey corporation would mean a purer supply of liquor.

New York—Observers of fashions in the big town are certain that someone has been spoofing a weekly paper in Chapel Hill, N. C. Its last number tells of women returning from New York with this information: "It is becoming quite the thing to be seen in cotton stockings in the best hotels and night clubs."

Cleveland—Columbus, Shakespeare, Wilson and Edison were included in a list of names suggested by pupils for eight windows in a new high school building, but the board of education disapproved. Shakespeare was too long. Roosevelt should have been included if Wilson was. Edison is alive. The approved list is: Socrates, Gutenberg, Washington, Franklin, Jefferson, Lincoln, Nightingale, Pasteur.

London—John Bull now claims to have the fastest airplane in the world—a single seated fighting machine with a 700 horsepower engine.

Washington—It is cheaper and faster to travel by airplane than train under certain conditions. In a test flight from New York the cost was $6.94 per passenger. The fare on the train is $8.14.

Adversity Brought Good Fortune

WILLIAM the Conqueror would have met a far more determined foe in England if good fortune had not befitted his arms in the strange form of a temporary adversity. But for a gale that wrecked many of William's ships and piled the bodies of the drowned upon the coast of Normandy, the conqueror's army would have reached England before King Harold's army was exhausted by battle with an earlier invader, King Harold Godwinson of Norway, and the issue of Hastings very likely would have been different.

The duke of Normandy based his claim to England's throne upon a promise said to have been made by King Edward the Confessor. To bolster this claim Duke William in 1066 imprisoned Earl Harold, who was visiting Normandy, and compelled him to swear he would support William's claim. In 1066 King Edward died and all England turned to Harold as next in right of succession. Harold renounced the oath taken under duress and accepted.

Throughout the summer of that year Duke William prepared for war. The pope recognized his right, so knights throughout Christendom joined the Norman's party. An army of 50,000 knights and 20,000 inferior soldiers was gathered on the banks of the Dvire river and a great fleet of vessels was assembled for the invasion of England.

King Harold on his side Harlow made vast preparations for war. Both the English fleet and the English army were ready to repel invasion when news arrived that King Harold Godwinson, excited by the effort by Earl Tostig, resented brother of Harold, had landed an army in Yorkshire. The English forces hastened thither and in a great battle at Stamford bridge destroyed King Harold and the flower of his nobility.

In the meantime William of Normandy, master of developments in England, was chafing under a delay occasioned by a northeast wind which held his fleet in port. When the wind died down to the west, the fleet set sail and encountered a fierce gale that drove them back upon the French coast. Many ships were lost and many men drowned, but this new delay only served to allow time for the diversion of the English army to Yorkshire.

When William finally reached England his landing was unopposed, as Harold and all his army were away fighting in Yorkshire.

Financial and Commercial

New York, Jan. 25 (AP).—Opposing speculative forces continued to struggle for control of the price movements in today's stock market but the line of least resistance was again downward. Certain rail, equipment and automotive issues were bid up at intervals in an apparent attempt to rally the general list, but the pressure against other stocks was too great. Trading was largely professional in character, and professional sentiment appeared to be bearish for the time being.

The assignment to creditors of a Philadelphia investment banking firm, the relatively poor showing made by several western roads in their December earnings statement, omission of the dividend on Hayes Wheel common, and the poor character of some of the recent annual reports are all believed to have influenced the selling of stocks. Erratic fluctuations in the so-called "merger rally" and lack of any authentic information to explain their recent movements also tended to weaken bullish enthusiasm.

Among the stocks which were prominent in the sporadic rallies that took place throughout the session were Banker and Aroostook, Columbia Carbon, Hudson Motor, Mack Trucks, Philadelphia and Reading Coal and Iron, Pressed Steel Car, Radio Corporation and Timken Roller Bearing.

The sharp break in Chesapeake and Ohio was based on reports that the revised Van Swearingen merger plan, which is understood to make that road the chief unit, will involve the issuance of new stock in order to provide for an exchange with the stock of other constituent roads.

About the Folks

Andrew J. Murphy, Sr., the Strand sporting goods dealer, is confined to his home on Stuyvesant street by illness.

Chauncey Brown was removed from the office of Dr. Van Norstrand to the Benedictine Hospital in the ambulance Monday evening.

Arthur E. Rose, the well-known attorney, formerly of this city, is seriously ill at Albany, having been in a hospital for several days.

Mr. and Mrs. Morris O'Rourke of 26 St. Mary's street are receiving congratulations over the arrival of son, Sheldon Frederick, born at the Benedictine Hospital.

Harris Brown of the Brown Tire Company is spending a month at West Palm Beach, Florida. Mr. and Mrs. Brown expect to return about the middle of February.

John Madden of Wilbur, who was injured in a fall on the ice Christmas eve, was removed from the Kingston City Hospital to his home on Thursday and is doing nicely under the care of Dr. Joseph Jacobson.

Miss Betty Forthright, daughter of Mrs. Fred E. Voorhies of 46 Green street, was taken to the Benedictine Hospital Monday where she underwent an operation by Dr. John G. O'Leary for appendicitis, which was of an acute nature. The operation was pronounced as being successful.

A woman with a butcher knife put two robbers to flight. We should save a woman with a butcher knife to almost as dangerous as a woman with an umbrella.

A Russian, one hundred and two years old, has been married five times and has 27 children, but took vacation by serving in every war in the last 90 years.

Dr. Mayo says that married men of 40 years of age are in a dark room, which may be the reason a girl who is anxious to get married turns down the lights.

Consumption of spaghetti has decreased greatly in Italy under the dictatorship of Mussolini but the world would be more enthusiastic if the restriction included garlic.

Home Bureau Has Busy Week

Meetings Scheduled for Communities in Different Sections of County—Fruit Demonstration Proves Popular.

The Ulster County Home Bureau closes the first month of the new year with a heavy schedule for the week. The inclemency of the weather and the road conditions over the county have caused several communities to carry over January meetings to the last week. This week, therefore, finds women in ten communities holding their regular get together for an afternoon of sociability and for an opportunity of getting some new ideas relative to home making. Stone Ridge Holds Joint Meeting.

On Friday, January 23, the Stone Ridge Farm and Home Bureau holds its annual all day meeting. Prof. John Barron of Cornell has been secured to speak at both sessions regarding the legume campaign in the county. The Home Bureau serves hot lunch at noon. The meeting is held at the Grange Hall and begins at 10:30.

Malden Holds First Meeting.
Considerable interest is manifesting itself in Home Bureau work among the ladies in Malden-on-Hudson. A meeting has therefore been arranged for Thursday afternoon, when Miss Evelyn Nance, Home Bureau manager, will explain the work of the organization. The meeting will be held in the library at the school, and will begin at 3 o'clock. A good attendance is anticipated as so many seem interested in knowing about the Home Bureau work.

Fruit Demonstration Popular.
In spite of the blizzard of a week ago 37 women, representing almost every organized community in Ulster county came to Kingston to see the demonstration given by Miss Lucille Brover from Cornell, specialist in food preparation. Eight communities are this week repeating the demonstration for the benefit of those in the communities who could not come to Kingston for the lesson. The demonstration is on the preparation of fruit dishes, emphasizing especially the use of apples in the diet. The demonstration is so well liked that a good attendance on the part of all who can possibly get out to the meetings is assured.

The week's schedule is as follows:
Tuesday—Fruit demonstration, Kerhonkson, at the home of Mrs. Humiston.
Wednesday—Fruit demonstration, Shokan, at the home of Mrs. Vander Ooster.
Thursday—Fruit demonstration, Lomontville, at the home of Mrs. F. Ferguson.

Thursday—Malden on Hudson, at the library of Malden school.
Friday—Fruit demonstration, Hurley, at the home of Mrs. J. Ostrander.

Friday—Stone Ridge, joint meeting, Grange Hall.
Friday—High Falls, fruit demonstration, basement of Reformed Church.

Friday—Academy, fruit demonstration, home of Mrs. H. M. Eppes.

Society Notes

Cottkill, Jan. 25.—Mr. and Mrs. Edward E. Bennett celebrated their fifth wedding anniversary on Friday, January 21, and a wooden wedding celebration was held at their home. Guests arrived at the home of the couple at seven o'clock in the evening and Mr. and Mrs. Bennett were showered with congratulations and a goodly number of useful and pretty presents were given them. A delicious dinner was served on the table which was tastefully arranged and decorated in blue and white. After the meal a social time was enjoyed and the many friends of Mr. and Mrs. Bennett departed for their homes in Poughkeepsie, Stone Ridge, Marlinton and Pine Bush when the delightful party was over, wishing the couple many more happy years of wedded life.

A Surprise Party.
A surprise party was given to Mr. and Mrs. Short at their home, 168 Downs street, Friday night, by their daughter, Miss Leonetta Short, and her many friends. Many games were played and there was dancing. A bountiful lunch was served at midnight.

Ackhart-Simpson.
Miss Gladys M. Simpson and George H. Ackhart, both of Clinton, were married Saturday at the parsonage of the Heading Methodist Church, Poughkeepsie, by the Rev. George H. Chesebrough, pastor. The attendants were Miss Irene M. Hyatt and Robert Upright, both of Clinton. Mr. and Mrs. Ackhart will make their home in this village.

Birthday Surprise Party.
A delightful birthday surprise party was tendered Mrs. M. Abramowitz on Sunday evening. Among those present were Mrs. A. Streifer, Mrs. J. Kreppel, Mrs. J. Levy, Mrs. D. Karp, Mrs. G. Kramer, Mrs. M. Reben, Mrs. W. Lehr, Mrs. H. Klein, Mrs. A. Silverman, Mrs. M. Segal, Mrs. A. Ball, Mrs. J. Kirsner. A delicious midnight supper was served and the guests departed wishing the hostess many happy returns.

Sorosis.
Sorosis was entertained Monday afternoon by Mrs. Hull. Mrs. Gibbons gave the club an excellent brief training in parliamentary law, after which Mrs. Graham gave a valuable and interesting outline of "Changes Brought About in the Home by Religion, Education and Politics." Rounding out this subject, Mrs. Wilson gave appropriate readings from "John Ward, Preacher" by Deland. Next Monday Mrs. Schornstheimer will be the hostess.

Surprise Party.
Sunday evening a surprise party, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William Lehr, was held in honor of their son, Jerome. Many games were enjoyed and during the evening Jerome was presented with a beautiful ring, given by his many friends. An excellent supper was served. Among those present were Sarah Vogel, Selma Lehr, Edna Gallop, Ruth Joseph, Sylvia Mann, David Levy, Julius Kirsner, Raymond Robt., Harry Spiegel, Richard Kalish and Edward Netburn.

Invited to Lecture.
The Monday Club extends to all those who have attended the Monday-Atkins lectures last year and this year as associate members an invitation to attend a complimentary lecture to be given by Dr. Lucy Textor, of the Vassar College faculty, at the chapel of the First Reformed Church next Monday afternoon at 4 o'clock. Dr. Textor spent last summer in Europe and will speak on her experiences during that sojourn, which will give to those who hear her a vivid picture of European history in the making.

Twentieth Century Club.
Miss Ingalls was the hostess of the Twentieth Century Club on Monday afternoon. The roll call was "Wit and Humor." Mrs. De Garmo gave a highly interesting paper on "English Pottery," mentioning Wedgwood, Crown Derby, Royal Delft, Spode, etc., and also some others. Miss Hyde then introduced Mrs. O'Neil, the health nurse of the city, who told most interestingly of the work of the health department, especially speaking of the use of serums in the inoculation processes looking toward the prevention of a spread of diseases. The next meeting of the Twentieth Century Club will be with Mrs. R. Stuart Williams and will be a musical afternoon.

Pleasant Surprise Party.
A very pleasant surprise party was held at the home of Marion Bernard, 49 Tompkins street, in honor of her eleventh birthday. Games were enjoyed by the little folks. Piano selections were rendered by Lillian Longtree and Catherine Murphy. Delightful refreshments were served, after which the guests departed wishing Miss Marion many more birthdays. Those present were Bertha Blanshan, Lillian and Mildred Longtree, Rita Lang, Rita Leachman, Helen Kraus, Mary and Jella Settle, Jane Hanson, Edna Sanilough, Fannie Osterbrook, Catherine and Mary Murphy, Harriet, Marion, Fannie, Gladys and Ruth Bernard, Matt Leachman, Floyd Newer, George Bujay, Leslie Hanson, Joseph Murphy, Emil, Charles and Edward Beck, Julius Webster, John Wimmer, Frank Norman, Henry Settle, Eugene and Edward Bernard, Harry Rappaport.

A Farewell Party.
Grand George, Jan. 25.—On Friday evening the members of the Young Men's Club of the M. E. Church met in a body and proceeded to the home of Franklyn Rowell, where they tendered him a complete surprise party. He left on Tuesday for New York city where he will take up a course in electrical engineering with the Bell Laboratories of the Western Electric Company. After a very enjoyable evening with games and music, very beautiful dinner was served by Mrs. Rowell at which time the leader of the class, Leon Proper, presented Franklyn with a beautiful gift in the form of a card case and wallet, and expressed a full appreciation of the fine work he had done and the class in any way he could for the good of all concerned. Every one departed wishing Franklyn Godspeed and good luck in his new venture.

Monday Club.
The Monday Club met at the home of Mrs. Leven Seale on Malden Lane on Monday afternoon and devoted the day to George Bernard Shaw. Two short but exceedingly interesting papers were given: "The Amazing Versatility of Shaw," by Mrs. De la Vergne, and "His Pastures and Social Relevance," by Mrs. Wheeler. Mrs. Lawton gave a very brief picture of Shaw's recent work, "St. Joan," which was followed by an outline of "Camden," given by Mrs. M. J. De la Vergne, after which group readings, some of which were given by Mrs. Burghville, Mrs. Elting and Mrs. Reed. Next Monday the Monday Club will entertain the Atkinson Club and all of the associate members of last year and this year at the chapel of the First Reformed Church at 4 o'clock, when Dr. Textor of Vassar College will speak on her experiences in Europe last summer. The subject for the following Monday's consideration will be "Harris," the afternoon to be in charge of Mrs. Manning.

And Keep Them.

LOCAL DEATH RECORD.

Recent Deaths and Funerals of Persons in This Vicinity.
Robert M., daughter of Robert M. and Lillian M. McLachlan, aged 5 years, died at the home of her parents, 77 Gage street, on Monday. The funeral was held this morning at 9:30 o'clock from the Holy Cross Church. Interment in Wilkwyck Cemetery.

Elizabeth Weber, widow of Daniel Herr, died at her home in Ulster Park Monday after a brief illness. Besides her husband she is survived by three sons, Robert and Frederick of Ulster Park and Daniel of Iowa. A requiem Mass will be celebrated for the repose of her soul in the Exopus Catholic Church on Thursday at 9 o'clock. Interment in the family plot, Holy Cross Cemetery, Brooklyn.

U. Grant Teetsell, a well-known business man of Saugerties, died suddenly Saturday night while in his barn near the King's Highway at Katsbaan. He was the owner of the Holt-Lyon Company factory on Teetsell street, Saugerties, which he opened a few years ago, building a new plant and removing the machinery from Tarrytown. He also purchased the former B. M. Brink farm at Katsbaan where he made his home. He is survived by his wife and one son, Harold. He was a member of King Solomon Lodge of Masons of Tarrytown and other Masonic bodies, including Mecca Shrine of New York city. He was also a member of the Junior Order of American Mechanics of Tarrytown. Funeral services under Masonic auspices at the late residence Wednesday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. Interment in Katsbaan cemetery.

The funeral of Mrs. Susan Barmann was held from her late home, No. 24 Barmann avenue, this morning at 9 o'clock and 9:30 at St. Peter's Church, where a solemn requiem Mass was offered for the repose of her soul, the Rev. J. P. Neumann being the celebrant, the Rev. Joseph Huband, deacon, and the Rev. Father De Krom, subdeacon. The church was filled with sorrowing relatives and friends. There was also a large attendance from the Society of Christian Mothers in attendance. During the Mass, Monsignor Joseph Rummel of New York city, a former pastor of St. Peter's Church, and the Rev. F. Fabian of Newburgh, former pastor of the Church of the Immaculate Conception, were seated in the chancel. The bearers were Mayor E. J. Dempsey, Thomas O'Hara, James A. Phelan, Maurice Rice, Hugh F. Connelly and C. J. Heltman. The interment was in the family plot in St. Peter's Cemetery, where the committal services were conducted by Monsignor Rummel, assisted by the Rev. Father Fabian and the Rev. Father Huband.

The funeral of Robert Main, who died Sunday, will be held Wednesday afternoon from the late residence, No. 226 Albany avenue, at 3 o'clock. Mr. Main, one of the oldest and best known brick manufacturers along the Hudson river, died at his residence, 326 Albany avenue, this city, on Sunday, January 22. Mr. Main was born at Croham, England, on October 13, 1850, came to this country when about 13 years old, and settled at Catskill, N. Y., where he worked on a farm until he engaged in the brick business between Catskill and New York. Afterward he was employed by Cordis & Hutton, brick manufacturers, having charge of the sale and delivery of their brick in New York city. From this he established an agency for the sale of brick for other manufacturers on commission. In 1889 he purchased the brick yard at Steep Rock, now owned by Dwyer Brothers. Mr. Main continued to increase his interests in the brick business by purchasing the Van Deusen yard at Glaseo, and also built one of the largest yards along the Hudson river at Stockport. About 1900 Mr. Main formed the Empire Brick and Supply Company, dealers in all kinds of building materials, with offices, storehouses and distributing yards at New York and Brooklyn. He was vice-president and treasurer of this corporation. When the Greater New York Brick Company, a selling agency for Hudson river brick, was formed, Mr. Main was elected treasurer and held that office for a number of years. In later life Mr. Main withdrew from active interest in business and led a more or less retired life. He was a member of the First Reformed Church. Fraternity No. 243, F. and A. M., and Mt. Herod Chapter.

leader of the class, Leon Proper, presented Franklyn with a beautiful gift in the form of a card case and wallet, and expressed a full appreciation of the fine work he had done and the class in any way he could for the good of all concerned. GOOD ROADS

WINTER WEATHER SOFTENS SURFACE

Nearly every one has noticed how much softer a road surface is in the spring than it is in the fall or summer. In many cases gravel-surfaced roads are softened to such an extent that the wheels of the traffic passing over the road cut through the gravel and into the clay soil below. Much of the gravel is pounded down into the clay and the clay in turn comes to the surface of the road. It only requires a few repetitions of this to do away with the fine riding qualities of a gravel-surfaced road. The clay soon predominates and during wet weather the road surface is sticky and tends to be slippery rather than possessing the qualities of gravel.

Years ago it was thought that a certain road could not be successfully graveled because the gravel would sink down through the clay. It had been graveled a time or two and the gravel always disappeared. The trouble was that the layer of gravel placed upon the road was too thin, and when wet, spring weather came, the wheels cut through the gravel crust on top of the clay and forced the gravel into the clay. This same road has now been successfully graveled for years and the only thing necessary was to put on a sufficient thickness of gravel to sustain the weight of the traffic.

If one will consider what takes place during the winter when freezing weather comes, it is easy to see why roads are softer in the spring. If the fall is wet the gravel freezes when considerable moisture is present. This water turning to ice expands, forces the soil particles apart, and when this ice melts in the spring the particles are not compact as they had been, but are left loose because of the so-called "heaving" of the road due to freezing. This expanding effect of the frozen moisture extends as deep as the frost line, which, in this latitude, is about two and one-half feet in an ordinary winter. When the roads thaw out in the spring, therefore, the soil particles are loose and must again be compacted by the action of hoofs and wheels.—E. B. House, Professor of Civil and Irrigation Engineering, Colorado Agricultural College.

Highway Vision Blocked by Ungodly Billboards

Preservation of the beauty of the countryside may be an important argument against the billboards that line the highways. But just as strenuous an argument is their danger to motorists.

Even those signs that display a picture with just a phrase or so threaten an accident when they are placed at corners to hide approaching automobiles from view.

But the greater danger lies in the long-winded billboards that some advertisers seem to think are better sales vehicles than their more or less

Cincinnati Reds Ready for Season

Cincinnati, Jan. 25 (AP).—The pennant which they missed by a narrow margin last year is fluttering in the eyes of the Cincinnati Reds of 1927. With H. G. Ford ready to start the season at shortstop, Manager Jack Hendricks believes the Reds have an excellent opportunity to finish in front this season. Ford was out for the greater part of the race last summer when the Reds ran second to St. Louis. Had he been holding down shortstop when the season opened Hendricks believes the Reds would have won the championship with a margin of games to the good. The Reds had the batting leadership of the league last year and three of the leading hitters. Hendricks expects to open the season with the same players that placed the club in the runnerup position last year.

No outstanding trades have been negotiated outside of the purchase of Kolp, a pitcher bought from St. Paul of the American Association. Enough recruits have been added to bring the Reds' pitching roster up to fourteen. With Ford among the regulars, the infield is one of the strongest in the league. Pipp will be at first base, Critz, who was voted the second most valuable player in the National League, as second, and Driesen at third.

Pettenger, obtained from Louisville last year, will act as first substitute infielder for the left side of the diamond. Bressler will be ready to play first base should he be needed to replace Pipp.

For the outfield the Reds have Christensen, left fielder, Roush, center and Walker, right, with Bressler and Zitzman as reserves. Bressler probably will play leftfield when a lefthand pitcher is in the box for the opposing team.

The pitching staff is conceded to be strong with the lineup of Luque, the Cuban; Mays, submarine hurler, Donohue, Jackie May, Nehf and others.

Luque has announced that he may not leave Cuba to play with Cincinnati the opening season but it is believed he will answer the call of "play ball" when the season opens.

Nehf has reported that the neuritis has left his pitching hand and that he will be in shape to take his regular turn in the box.

Catcher Eugene "Bubbles" Hargrave, considered by John Heydler, president of the National League, as the leading batter last year, will catch the major portion of the games. Val Picinich will be second string catcher, with Clyde Sukeforth, who was recalled from the minors, as third man.

TWO PLAYS WEDNESDAY AT COMFORTER HALL.

A fine entertainment will be given in the Church of the Comforter Hall on Wednesday evening at 8 o'clock under the auspices of the adult Bible class. It will consist of two plays given by the young people of the Clinton Avenue M. E. Church.

"Lydia, Seller of Purple" is a Bible drama in two acts by Helen L. Wilcox. The place of this story is in Philippi in Macedonia. The time is during the first century of the Christian era.

The cast:
Lydia, a Macedonian Christian and a seller of purple. Evelyn C. Lasher
Acidalia, her cousin and assistant. Marie Hopper
Rhea, a neighbor. Ruth Bell
Irb, a maid possessed of a spirit of divination. Dorothy Hyatt.

The first act is in the shop of Lydia, and the second act is in the shop of Lydia after an earthquake. The second play is a moral pageant-drama in three scenes by Harry L. Newton and its name is "Everyyouth."

The place is in a studio of some artists and art students.
The time is Today. Yesterday and Always.

Scene I: Morning. Scene II: After noon a month later. Scene III: Noon some months later.
